Comcast and Charter Education Solutions

School districts must find a reliable network solution that is capable of delivering service well into the future, a solution that won't require massive investments in human resources or technology with a network that can integrate with existing systems and accommodate new applications as they become available.

Comcast and Charter have been designing advanced networking solutions for educational institutions nationwide for years and have aided numerous schools in the E-rate funding process. Comcast and Charter services allow institutions to have a fully meshed network, providing any-to-any connectivity at native LAN speeds. Schools can even extend their network into the homes of teachers and administrators to provide high-speed, always on access.

The Southeastern Regional Education Service Center (SERESC) was formed in 1974 when 14 school districts pooled their resources to support special education students being mainstreamed into public schools for the first time. SERESC was created and remains a non-profit entity managed by a Board of Directors comprised of School Board Members and Superintendents of Schools.

SERESC is an agency known for its services and collaborations with education, business, local and federal governments. These partnerships enable SERESC to provide quality services to its schools and a professional development center where both educators and business professionals gather to work, learn and be inspired.
